thick shaggy black fur, this beast has roamed the fenland countryside for centuries.

Some say that Professor Black who established this Wizing House was obsessed with this local apparition and hunted it down only to gain its long sharp claw after an epic fight. Proud of his battle with the creature he used his magic to turn the claw into a charm of unknown power. But beware! Others believe that Professor Black was indeed the beast itself; and was cursed by his wife to rise out of his human form and roam the fens as this flea ridden hound. Some say he still does! Which is your favourite school house?

This is Hickathrift House. Tom Hickathrift is a legendary figure from old tales of fenland folklore. Some say he was a normal man that battled a hoard of ogres and a giant or two; but true witches and wizards know that we was actually a giant himself! Tom lived in the marshes that surrounded the Isle of Ely, but would come into town to help the people when they needed a strong back and a helping hand. Tom Hickathrift was friendly giant who scared off evil fenland boggarts and the not so friendly giants, to keep the school and the fen people safe.

This is Larkinsedge House. Little is known about legendary larkhibbits. They'd fly high in the sky and sing alluring songs to guide boat men along the waterways. It is believed that the mother of these bird like magical creatures, looking like a winged mermaid; half river witch with a mer tail, half bird. She loved her many larkhibbit children and wanted a safe place for them to live. Some say in her search for a true home, she became great friends with Angela Anguillador and they built the school as a safe haven for all magical creatures who wanted to learn magic.
